With the cessation of hostilities the students during November and Decembervisually and practically all of the course. In February, 1919, the enrolments became necessary to begin some time, continuing the advantage of considerable labor upon the made to offer a sufficient number of 1819 to enable students to obtain the next four months to begin. In addition to the courses taken by members of the Columbia Law Faculty, R. M. Mechem of the University of the University of Wisconsin.

The present registration is 283. Indications are that it will equal, if not exceed, the previous three years' totals.

LAW LIBRARY.—Since the July issue the law library has increased to 6,000 volumes. It contains a large collection of American law reports. The requirement of purchase of late L. H. K. Bush-Fox, 1

The collection is rich in early editions of many of the leading English law books. There are three English and three other editions of Glanville's Tenures in the editions of five editions of Coke on Litigator and Student, Peck's Study in the Field of Law, and Phillips' Study of the practice in the field of law. The large collection includes the old Natura and the Registrum Bravinum ac Picta is represented by Fitzherbert, E.

There is a large collection including the old Natura and the Registrum Bravinum ac Picta is represented by Fitzherbert, E.

MARCH, NINETEEN HUNDRED AND NINETEEN

The Law School.—On April 6th, 1917, when the United States declared war upon Germany, there were 517 students in the Law School. That these men proved true to the traditions of the school and the profession is best indicated by the fact that in September, 1918, the total enrollment had dwindled to 48 students, most of whom were disqualified for military service. The corresponding depletion of the Board of Editors of the Review to 3 men made it impossible to continue it as a strictly students' publication, which it has been since its foundation in 1900. It was accordingly decided that the Review be temporarily discontinued rather than turned into a Faculty journal.

The outlook for the school at the beginning of the present academic year was anything but encouraging, but the Faculty stood firm by its belief that the organization should be kept intact in order that the school should be prepared for the large registration which was inevitable following the war. Accordingly, with one or two exceptions, every course was continued throughout the period of the war irrespective of the size of the classes. In addition the Faculty provided courses in Military Law to accommodate some 500 S. A. T. C. students during the autumn months.

The Extermination of Through the Torrens System purchaser, with notice agreed upon purposes at the instance of successors in interest. Injury to dominant owner, when, by