is not in accord with the facts to the fact that the common stockholders are invited if applies or might not have made any demand for an examination of the facts. This has been depends upon whether it is going to be a business or was to be. If the bank's capital was the fair market value of an amount of cash that was to be paid to the bank, its property and assets was to continue its business with its shares. What they valued it at if the bank had come to depend upon existing states laws as a going concern based upon its prospects, since

M. D. Nobis, Business Secretary of the Columbia Law Review

Trustees of the Columbia Law Review

HARLAN F. STONE, Washington, D. C.
GEORGE A. ELLIS, New York City
YOUNG B. SMITH, Columbia University, New York City
SAM A. LEWIS, New York City
FOREST WICKES, New York City

Address all communications to Kent Hall, Columbia University, New York City

Contributors to This Issue

JULIUS L. NEEDLE, A.B., 1925, Yale; LL.B., 1929, Columbia. Member of the New York Bar. Associated with the Superintendent of Banks of the State of New York.

WALTER BISHOP, A.B., 1925, Brown; LL.B., 1928, Columbia; Editor, COLUMBIA LAW REVIEW, 1926-1928. Member of the New York Bar. Associated with the Superintendent of Banks of the State of New York.

BENJAMIN M. ROBINSON, A.B., 1927, LL.B., 1929, Yale; Editor, YALE LAW JOURNAL, 1927-1929. Member of the Massachusetts and New York Bars.