The rapid expanse of the benefits of zoning ordinance provisions for the accommodation of the public and the needs of the community has often led to the question of what the proper scope of accommodation should be under the law. Stover, in which the symbolism of the exercise of the first amendment.

This Comment proposes to examine the purposes of the exercise of the first amendment.

Defendants, who engaged in the activity of clothesline services, were sued for violation of the zoning ordinance. The ordinance prohibited the use of clotheslines within the city limits. The defendants were found liable for violating the ordinance.

2. Brief for the
3. 3d, pp. 4-5.